

December 18, 2018

Dear Friends of the ACO:

In last year's 2017 Annual Report and Holiday Appeal, we showed this picture of children and said, "Like the children in the picture, the American College of Orgonomy has a load of gifts, gifts the world desperately needs." Later in the "Gaining Momentum" section of that report we said:

For the first time in a long time it feels like we've overcome some inertia and are gaining momentum. It's like children with a sled. With continued pulling on the rope, there comes a moment when the sled finally starts to move and slides on its own. It feels like we're near that point. If we keep things moving, it will begin to feel effortless.

We could not have been more prescient. In 2018 we've taken a new approach with our public events and the number of new activities has been unprecedented. As always it's miraculous that we accomplish so much with our limited staff and bare-bones budget. Your ongoing generous donations make it possible for us to bring our gifts to the world. We've committed ourselves to a major thrust over the next five years to develop new interest in our work. We need your help more than ever as we take on increasingly ambitious projects that are well underway as 2018 comes to a close.

We have a lot to report in the 2018 Annual Report and Holiday Appeal that will be coming to you soon. In the meantime, in this season of gift-giving we appreciate your continued support.

Below is a link to a brief on-line article that spells out how, despite changes in the tax laws for 2018, you may still find tax advantages by making a donation before December 31st.

<https://www.cbsnews.com/news/make-the-most-of-your-charitable-donations-under-new-tax-law/>

Thank you and best wishes for a happy and healthy new year.

Peter A. Crist, M.D., President

Please click here to support the ACO today.